Short Profile

I am a decolonial scholar, community educator, composer, producer and Head of MaCTRI (MEP Academy Community Training & Research Institute). As an academic my research focuses on community education, critical race studies, arts-led community development, and Public Engagement.

I have been a company director of my own cultural and social enterprises, Revelation Collective, Revelation Community Arts and One Voice and I have been a community music practitioner, as well as a professional musician and composer in the contemporary classical, theatre and popular music sectors.

Research and Enterprise
Research Interests	Community education, race and ethnicity (critical race studies), neoliberalism, post-colonial studies, music, arts, community development, community engagement.
Research Portfolio	My research portfolio has evolved from my enterprise activities in the community into scholarly and applied research that explores the intersection between Community Education, Cultural Theory (critical race studies), Musical Composition (in its various forms), Neoliberalism and Social Agency. I am particularly interested in researching the impact of arts-led community education on the social and economic well-being of the communities with whom I work. My work also seeks to measure the wider impact of cultural activities on urban economic regeneration by using evaluation and applied research methodologies. My work seeks to bridge the gap between critical theories (from the academy) and social/community agency (grassroots activism). My research portfolio continues to include projects of varied types: artistic collaborations as well as scholarly, applied and evaluation research and participation in working groups. Increasingly it integrates academic, social and artistic enterprise into an academic research-relevant context.
Research Groups/Networks	Current: Academic lead: MaCTRI (MEaP Academy Community Training and Research Institute) community legacy of Critical Race and Ethnicity Research Cluster part of the Positive Communities Research Group (MMU) Academic Lead: MaCTRI Tackling Racial Injustice, Young Manchester: with CAHN and Elevate Young Minds Academic Lead: UFAM. Publications summary (See Appendix A for full list)	My published and public artistic work includes a combination of more than 100 publications consisting of archived musical materials and performances and written outputs; including music scores, music recordings, music performances, books, chapters in books, journal articles and smaller articles, such as book reviews and project reports (excluding my high impact outputs i.e. blogs).

Ornette D Clennon

www.ornettedclennon.me

"The book is insightful and provides a different scope on racialized discourse from a praxis perspective and its appeal to community workers provides an inclusive attempt to engage audiences outside of academia. The book also offers a very interesting point of departure particularly regarding the exploration of Community resistance in a neoliberal post-truth era. The situating of this chapter within a post-truth context and why activism is needed to disrupt this is powerful." (Dr Jason Arday, Roehampton University, UK)

"This is a timely and important book that expertly combines personal narrative with nuanced theoretical analysis. Black Scholarly Activism between the Academy and Grassroots is a deeply engaging work that urges the reader to consider the possibilities and challenges facing academics who work towards social justice. Once picked up, this is a difficult book to put down: a must read." (Dr Remi Joseph-Salisbury, University of Manchester, UK)

2. Clennon, O. D. (2017) The Polemics of CLR James and Contemporary Black Activism. Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan. ISBN 10:3319475479, ISBN 13:978-3319475479

"Clennon, in particular, is to be congratulated for making the critical intellectual effort to try and wrestle theoretically with how James might have made sense of the contemporary critical moment in Britain, amid 'Brexit' and the rise of Corbynism." (Dr Christian Hogsbjerg, University of Brighton)

"The field of CLR James is much ploughed, but Clennon has provided us with a deeply researched study, with James's political activism as its focus. James, the scholar-activist, was always concerned to bridge the divide between theory and practice, while many of his commentators have dealt with either one or the other. By using his own James-influenced political activism as part of a research template, Clennon's important book is very much the work of a scholar-activist attuned to our own times." (Kenneth Surin, Literature, Duke University)

3. Clennon, O.D. (2015) Urban Dialectics, the Market and Youth Engagement: The 'Black' Face of Eurocentrism? New York: Nova Publishers ISBN: 978-1-63463-808-1, ISBN: 978-1-63463-817-3

"This is a fantastic book which expertly uncovers the intersections of capitalism, culture and race in the contemporary world. Ornette Clennon's solid and sophisticated analysis provides space for young people to critique and reclaim their lifeworlds." (Dr Robbie Shilliam, Reader in International Relations, Queen Mary College, London)

II Books: co-authored

4. Clennon, O.D. & Sampaio, C. (2023) Decoloniality in the Grassroots and The Re-emergence of the Black Organic Intellectual In O. Clennon (Series Ed.). Palgrave Studies in Decolonisation and Grassroots Black Organic Intellectualism. Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan. ISBN 3031448464

"Decoloniality in the Grassroots is an engaging and very original contribution to the field. It uses auto-ethnography and is structured like a long conversation between friends whilst also unpacking structural racism, whiteness, decoloniality in Brazil and the UK. This non-academic register allows for surprising insights and revelations, and the focus on Brazil and the United Kingdom spotlights the Black Intellectual in contexts that remain largely overlooked by extant scholarship." (Dr Nivi Manchanda, Queen Mary University of London, UK)

5. Bruce, F. & Clennon, O.D. (2022) Decolonising Public Health through Praxis – The Impact on Black Health in the UK In O. Clennon (Series Ed.). Palgrave Studies in Decolonisation and Grassroots Black Organic Intellectualism. Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan ISBN 978-3-031-18404-8, ISBN 978-3-031-18405-5

"Faye Bruce and Ornette D. Clennon have made a sterling contribution to decolonial theory and public health. For far too long, racism and anti-Blackness have remained not only unacknowledged, but a deliberately ignored social determinant of health among U.K. health organizations, universities, and policymakers. For centuries, U.K. public health theory has continued to disown its racist presumptions of populations and the pathologies it has imposed on Black people. Decolonising Public Health Through Praxis: The Impact on Black Health in the UK is not only a corrective, but an evidence-based resource that can move public health programs from the empty rhetoric of diversity to the actual practice of decolonization" (Prof. Tommy J. Curry, Ph.D., MPH, Personal Chair of Africana Philosophy & Black Male Studies, Department of Philosophy, The University of Edinburgh, School of Philosophy, Psychology, and Language Sciences, UK)

"A much needed and thought-provoking work combining intellectual rigour with contemporary lived experience of Black people of the National Health Service. The book convincingly argues - using theory and case studies, conversations and testimonies of community experts through lived experience - that the "stressors of racism and its epigenetic effects are better able to explain why Black people are more at risk of higher rates of morbidity and mortality across many health conditions, including COVID-19". Clennon and Bruce's book makes a unique and much needed contribution to a body of knowledge on the social, spiritual and cultural determinants of health access and outcomes for people of African and Caribbean descent. They go further to evidence the key roles that community led initiatives in faith, education, research and health advocacy in Greater Manchester can and are having on the better health and wellbeing of the African and Caribbean communities. A must-read book for health policy and professionals along with Black community health advocates who are determined to equalise health outcomes for all." (Patricia
